Lawyers from all over the world come to The University of Texas at Austin to expand the breadth and depth of their legal knowledge and invest in an internationally recognized Master of Laws. The LL.M. Program is diverse, selective, and small, with a maximum of 50 spots for each incoming class. LL.M. students from foreign countries and the U.S. are fully integrated into the academic life of the Law School, learning side by side with 880 J.D. students. The LL.M. class is global in reach, with students from 25 different countries in the Class of 2020. In fact, The University of Texas at Austin is home to over 5,000 international students, and the rich diversity on campus is essential to the university’s success as a global learning community.

Texas Law is situated on the northeast quadrant of campus, a short walk to museums, two recreation centers with pools, and a football stadium. Law school facilities include two courtrooms, study lounges, state-of-the-art classrooms, a café, and the Tarlton Law Library, one of the largest academic law libraries in the world. Additionally, Texas Law has an unbeatable set of 14 clinics, 16 programs and centers, 13 student-run journals, and 35 student organizations that round out law students’ legal education.
Finally, Texas Law is in Austin—the Live Music Capital of the World, the second fastest growing city in the U.S., and the second best city for liberals to live. Technology companies such as Apple, Dell, Facebook, Google, IBM, Intel, National Instruments, and Samsung have established major operations in Austin. Boasting 400 live music venues, 100 barbecue restaurants, 200 miles of urban hike and bike trails, and 300 sunny days each year, Austin is one of the best places in the world to be a law student.

The University of Texas School of Law offers a single LL.M. degree with six different concentrations. The LL.M. concentrations are:
- Business Law
- Cybersecurity Law
- Global Energy, International Arbitration & Environmental Law
- Human Rights & Comparative Constitutional Law
- Latin American & International Law
- U.S. Law for Foreign Lawyers

The LL.M. Program is committed to helping students achieve their academic and extracurricular goals. Throughout the year, the LL.M. Program organizes study breaks, plans events, and holds academic support and advising sessions. The experienced faculty and staff are always available to give each student the care and support they need to be successful in their legal studies and beyond.
